

Truman Pulls Man-Bites-Dog Switch, Interviews Newsman

BY ROBERT NIXSON
KEY WEST, Fla., March 7—President Truman settled down today for a two-week rest in South Florida after pulling a man-bites-dog switch in which he interviewed newsmen.

The chief executive, who flew to the U. S. sub base from Washington yesterday has thrust aside all but the most urgent state affairs.

President Truman is in a playish mood, despite the fact that he is very tired—tired perhaps for the first time since he has been in the White House.

In my time, I have interviewed Presidents, several ministers, three kings, the sultan of Morocco, and assorted individuals of rank both high and low. But yesterday was the first time I have ever been interviewed by the President of the United States.

I now know the spot President Truman is on every time we reporters confront him at his weekly news conferences, or whenever he steps on or off a plane or train.

Believe me, it isn't a comfortable feeling.

President Truman takes on all comers in his give-and-take news conferences. But I freely admit today, that when the President interviewed me before a battery of flashing ing newsreel cameras, I slunk to safety behind some stuttering, non-verbal phrases.

Things began happening at the Washington National Airport before his departure. He remarked to us enigmatically before boarding his big DC-6, "You'd better get down there in a hurry."

His ship took off and was followed a few moments later by the correspondents' Eastern Airlines chartered Constellation.

On board his plane, the President told Lt. Col. Francis Williams, his pilot:

"Let's get down there first, and have a little fun."

Usually the reporters' plane lands five or ten minutes ahead of the President's plane, to cover his landing. But not yesterday.

The President's plane landed at the Boca Chica airport a few minutes ahead of the newsmen's constellation.

Mr. Truman, waving an old envelope and pencil, raced over to our incoming plane. His hat brim was upturned, a broad smile on his face.

As the plane door was flung open, Mr. Truman demanded: "Where's the president?"

Where's the president of the White House Correspondents' Association?

I vaguely realized that the President of the United States was talking about this correspondent.

Waving his pencil and folded envelope, the President demanded:

"What is new on Molotov, Mr. President?"

I fled precipitately behind a quick: "No comment."

The President shot back: "I'm not that tough with you. I want an answer. I want it now."

Your correspondent (vaguely, his head spinning): "Yes, yes, indeed—"

The President: "All right."

Your correspondent: "I agree."

The President: "And 'no' too?"

Your correspondent, failing into the double-talk of officialdom: "And 'no,' too. On the other (Continued on Page Two)

Pickaway Eyes Revival Of Oleo Measure

County's 2 Senators Divide Support On Previous Bill Vote

Pickaway County, a strong agricultural community, Monday was watching the Ohio senate and its action on the hotly-contested oleo bill.

A move to have the senate reconsider the vote by which it defeated the colored oleo-margarine measure was in prospect for Monday night as the Ohio legislature begins its tenth week of sessions.

Pickaway especially will be watching its two senators who split their stand on the measure last time. Sen. Evan Ford (D-Columbus) voted against the bill while Sen. Roscoe Walcott (R-Columbus) voted "for."

Ford told Circleville leaders his vote was cast against the bill because "Pickaway County backed me for election last November and I'm sure Pickaway generally is against the measure." Ford's margin of victory came in Pickaway County.

THE MOTION to reconsider the vote will be made by Sen. William Boyd (D-Cleveland), who switched his vote last Wednesday so he could move to reconsider when it became apparent that the bill was not going to pass then.

Boyd has not yet decided if he will call for an immediate vote on the bill or to leave his motion pending. It will depend on whether proponents have their full strength—barely a 17-vote majority—as the new week begins.

Meanwhile, on the house side, a vote on FEPC legislation has been postponed at least until Wednesday and possibly until next week or later. The calendar committee failed to schedule the bill for Monday night or Tuesday.

One committee member expressed the private belief that the FEPC bill would not come up this week, since there were still amendments in the making.

His sentiment is significant since it takes unanimous consent of the committee to schedule a bill. The measure has been ready for a floor vote for more than a week.

The oleo bill was defeated by a 15-15 tie vote when the leadership was caught napping. The vote stood 16 to 14 for passage when Majority Leader Margaret Mahoney, who was presiding, failed to cast the deciding vote in the mistaken belief that, as temporary presiding officer, she could not cast a ballot.

WHEN BOYD saw that she was not going to vote, he jumped to his feet and changed his vote so he could move for reconsideration. (Continued on Page Two)

Massive Steel Truck Mires In Road Ditch

A massive tractor-trailer outfit carrying a pay-load of tons of steel taxed the strength and ingenuity of Pickaway County officials Monday when it became mired down in a ditch.

The truck became glued in a ditch on the detour of Route 22 east of Circleville, on a dirt road connecting the Lancaster and Stoutsville Pikes.

A local garage's wrecker strained and grunted in a vain effort Monday to dislodge the truck from its mired-in position, and finally threw in the towel in disgust.

The local contracting firm of C. F. Replogle was summoned to produce some of its massive earth-movers and give the situation a try.

The truck reportedly slipped into the ditch when it attempted to avoid a pot-hole in the detour.

Death Delays Bitter Filibuster

WASHINGTON, March 7—The bitter filibuster fight will be halted temporarily today with the Senate recessing out of respect to a Southern member who died on the eve of his maiden speech on the gag issue.

House Spy Panel Calls Parley On Activities In UN

WASHINGTON, March 7—The House Un-American Activities committee was summoned to a lock-door session to explore possible Communist spy activities centered at United Nations headquarters at Lake Success.

Sen. Mundt, (R) S. D., a former committee member, preceded the meeting with a charge that Americans fired by the State Department for security reasons are being hired at the UN.

The congressional spy probe is scheduled to hear preliminary reports of investigators who were assigned to check whether Russian or Soviet satellite UN personnel have engaged in espionage activities.

An influential member disclosed that open hearings may be held as a result of the weekend arrest of Miss Judith Coplon, Justice Department employee and Valentin A. Gubitchev, Russian UN architect, by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on espionage charges.

The Justice Department's case against Miss Coplon and Gubitchev was presented to a New York grand jury today.

Commenting on reports that "scores" of other government employees may be involved in espionage, Justice Department officials said they will investigate "all angles."

The 12-man group, in its tenth report to Congress on government reorganization, insisted that all non-regulatory transportation operations should be grouped in the department.

This would include management of the vast merchant fleet by the Maritime Commission, railway and motor carrier safety and car service activities by the Interstate Commerce Com-

Yank Girl, Russian Face Stiff Terms

NEW YORK, March 7—New York's spy-hunting federal grand jury met in special session today to hear the government's espionage case against Brooklyn-born Judith Coplon and Valentin A. Gubitchev, Soviet UN aide.

Vigorous Soviet protests over the arrest and jailing of Gubitchev were ignored as the government moved firmly ahead with its case against the Russian and Miss Coplon, 27-year-old Justice Department employee.

Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General Thomas J. Donegan, who has been directing the continuing grand jury investigation of Communist espionage, indicated he has little doubt that stiff indictments will be returned against the couple, seized in New York last Friday night.

Donegan noted that nothing prevents the grand jury from indicting the pair for even more serious crimes than charged against them at their arraignment Saturday.

Loyalty Order Constitutionality Being Doubted

WASHINGTON, March 7—A suit to declare President Truman's loyalty order unconstitutional was filed in the federal district court today on behalf of 26 postoffice employees facing action under the edict.

The suit is the first full scale legal test of the order. It asks the court to enjoin further loyalty proceedings and to reinstate all suspended employees to their former jobs.

Named as defendants were Attorney General Tom C. Clark; Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the loyalty review board, and his associate members; Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson and the three members of the postoffice loyalty board.

The changes would effect "great savings" in the commission said, "by elimination of overlaps" and better administration and would enable the department "to do a better job in serving the transportation, industry and commerce of the country."

The agencies would retain all regulatory functions. The commission agreed that they are responsible to Congress for regulatory activities, and that these should be exempt from reorganization plans.

Soviet Shift To Produce New Effort In Cold War

WASHINGTON, March 7—Diplomatic quarters in Washington today interpreted the recent shift in the Soviet high command as presaging a new and fateful battle in the cold war.

After studying the developments for more than two days these sources are convinced for the most part that the replacement of Viacheslav M. Molotov by Andrei Y. Vishinsky as foreign minister in no way implies an attempt at conciliation with the West.

The most accepted interpretation is that, in answer to the development of the North Atlantic Alliance, Moscow will pursue a more aggressive policy along lines already established.

But Washington diplomats do not believe Russia will provoke a shooting war at this time.

Injured Lad, 3, 'Little Improved'

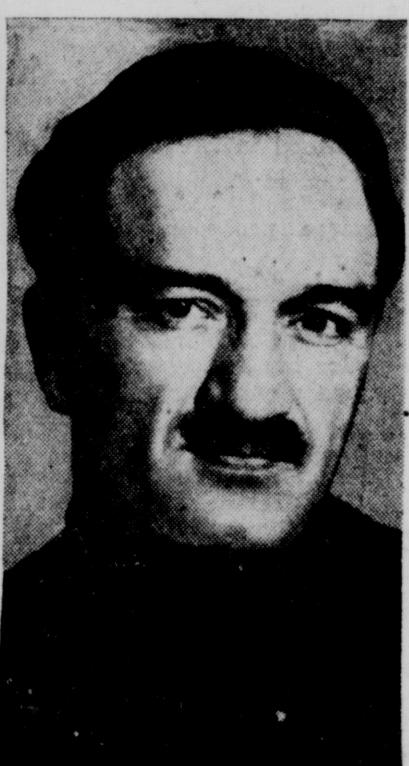

Neil Grant, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant of 836 South Scioto street, remained in serious condition Monday in Berger hospital following an auto-truck crash Saturday.

The youngster suffered a fractured skull when his father's auto was struck at Court and Mill streets intersection. He was reported "a little improved" but still in a "dangerous condition" by Berger hospital attaches Monday morning.

Jimmy Grant, 5, his brother, also injured when the smashup occurred, was discharged from the hospital Saturday night.

SEVERAL indications already have been given as to the form the new battle in the cold war will be waged. They are:

1. More open support of Communist elements in other countries, outside the iron curtain.
2. This has been indicated by pledges of support for Russia in Italy, France, Britain and the United States by Communist leaders.
3. More aggressive and open

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7—Flier Bill Odom, trying for a 5,000-mile nonstop record from Honolulu to New York in a tiny single-motored plane, pushed through a storm today and was riding a tailwind toward the California coast.

The lone pilot was "homing" on the radio beam of KGO, 50,000-watt San Francisco station, and advised the station at 10:30 a. m. "EST" that he was flying over "a boiling sea" about 550 miles off the Golden Gate.

Odom hopped from John Rodgers airport in Honolulu at 12:02 a. m. (EST) Sunday for Teterboro, N. J., airport, near New York, and hoped to land there about 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. He was averaging about 140 miles an hour. Odom radioed:

"I believe I am ahead of my flight plan."

"The sun just came up and there's a southwest wind about 25 miles per hour on the surface of the ocean."

"THE SEA is boiling but that's OK with me because it means a tailwind."

"I've come through the worst of a frontal storm."

The expression "frontal storm" was believed to indicate strong head winds.

Odom had reported at 9:30 a. m. (EST) that he had passed a Coast Guard vessel at the halfway mark between San Francisco and Honolulu and was flying about 100 miles south of the main course to avoid the worst part of the storm.

A B-17 plane based in Hawaii that had been accompanying him turned back after escorting him for 1,000 miles.

Junior Women Give Hospital New Chart Desk

Circleville Junior Women's Club made presentation of a large, new $150-chart desk to Berger hospital Monday morning.

The desk is the first of a series of donations planned by the clubwomen, according to Mrs. Joe Bell, spokesman for the organization.

She said that several nurses would be able to work simultaneously at the desk, while the old chart desk could accommodate but one.

The Club still has approximately $300 with which to purchase hospital equipment, but the women have tabled further action until the nurses' pay controversy is ironed out.

The clubwomen are solidly behind the issue of pay increase to the staff, and a delegation of the members will appear at next council meeting to voice opinions.

Members of the group also approved a motion of devoting weekly meeting nights toward sewing hospital garments needing repairs.

New Clergy Grabs Heard

Bulgars Silent; Verdicts Awaited

SOFIA, March 7—Bulgarian officials refused to comment today on reported new arrests of Protestant ministers in Sofia while the fate of 15 other Protestant churchmen charged with treason was awaited.

The three judges who heard the case of the 15 clergymen begin their deliberations today and the verdicts are expected tomorrow.

The Communist prosecutor asked for death penalties for four defendants and heavy prison sentences for the other 11.

All are charged with spying for the United States and Great Britain and related black market activities.

Officials remained silent on the reports of new arrests which are believed linked to new Bulgarian moves against so-called "Western imperialism and U. S. capitalism."

During the trial of the 15 Protestant leaders, which concluded Saturday, the prosecution charged repeatedly that capitalism and U. S. finance stood behind the Protestant churches in Bulgaria.

ALL DEFENDANTS in the trial just finished begged tearfully for mercy. The three judges who will decide their fate will announce their decision on the basis of majority opinion.

Local Troops To Get Honor

Pickaway District, Boy Scout Troops 107, 121 and 159 are to receive special recognition in Columbus Monday night for enrollment growth during 1948.

The troops are to receive special commendation from Fred J. Milligan, president of the Central Ohio Council. Main speaker for the evening will be A. E. Roberts of Cincinnati, international youth leader.

Richard Morris, member-at-large for the local district committee, and Raymond Turner, district field executive, will accept the local awards.

Troop 107 is sponsored by First Methodist church, Carl Jenkins, Scoutmaster; Troop 121 sponsored by the Presbyterian church, Robert Dean, Scoutmaster; and Troop 159 sponsored by the four Ashville churches, Robert Welsh, Scoutmaster.

Coast Guard, Merchant Marine Transfer Urged By Hoover Panel

WASHINGTON, March 7—The Hoover Commission today recommended transfer to the Commerce Department of government transportation activities, including the Merchant Marine and the Coast Guard.

The 12-man group, in its tenth report to Congress on government reorganization, insisted that all non-regulatory transportation operations should be grouped in the department.

This would include management of the vast merchant fleet by the Maritime Commission, railway and motor carrier safety and car service activities by the Interstate Commerce Commission, enforcement of air safety rules by the Civil Aeronautics Board, and certain activities of the Customs Bureau.

The changes would effect "great savings" in the commission said, "by elimination of overlaps" and better administration and would enable the department "to do a better job in serving the transportation, industry and commerce of the country."

The agencies would retain all regulatory functions. The commission agreed that they are responsible to Congress for regulatory activities, and that these should be exempt from reorganization plans.

The commission, headed by Former President Herbert Hoover, at one time secretary of commerce, also urged transfer to the department of the office of defense transportation, the public roads administration, and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Retiring Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal, a commission member, took issue with the proposal to transfer the Coast Guard, famed police patrol agency of the seas, from the Treasury Department.

Forrestal and Secretary of State Acheson, vice-chairman of the group, joined others in objecting to a recommendation that commercial fishing activities be shifted to commerce from the Interior Department.

The commission insisted that the Coast Guard "is obviously misplaced" in the Treasury, since its principal functions "relate to provision of coastal and interior aids and services to air and water navigation."

It disagreed with the recommendation of its "task force" that the Coast Guard be transferred to the Navy. The commission said the major weaknesses in federal transportation policy clearly arise from a failure, in practice, to recognize that the primary objective must be to assure the nation the best possible transportation system.

HUNDREDS of acres of farm land in Nebraska also were inundated by the swirling floodwaters.

Residents of at least one flood ravaged Iowa town readied for mass typhoid inoculations after near-record flood waters caused an estimated $500 thousand in damage.

Ohio Getting More Spring

Plains States Hit By Severe Floods

Fair, crisp weather prevailed in Ohio Monday, unlike several plains states which are being threatened with severe flood damage.

Although temperatures were not expected to rise above the mid-thirties over most of the state Monday, forecasters pointed out that the readings are normal for this time of the year.

They said a new southerly circulation will move into the state Tuesday to push temperatures well above the 50-degree mark. However, another shift to colder weather is predicted for Wednesday night.

The current cold weather in Ohio moved in Sunday morning, sending the mercury plunging at all points. Circleville recorded a 20-degree plunge in the 24-hour period ending Monday morning.

Melting snows and ice-clogged rivers in the plains states gave rise to the newest flood danger to thousands of residents. Apparently hardest hit by the late winter floods was the Missouri Valley where more than 1,000 persons were forced from their homes.

HUNDREDS of acres of farmland in Nebraska also were inundated by the swirling floodwaters.

Residents of at least one flood-ravaged Iowa town readied for mass typhoid inoculations after near-record flood waters caused an estimated $500,000 damage. (Continued on Page Two)

"I've come through the worst of a frontal storm."

The expression "frontal storm" was believed to indicate strong head winds.

Odom had reported at 9:30 a. m. (EST) that he had passed a Coast Guard vessel at the halfway mark between San Francisco and Honolulu and was flying about 100 miles south of the main course to avoid the worst part of the storm.

A B-17 plane based in Hawaii that had been accompanying him turned back after escorting him for 1,000 miles.

Junior Women Give Hospital New Chart Desk

Circleville Junior Women's Club made presentation of a large, new $150-chart desk to Berger hospital Monday morning.

The desk is the first of a series of donations planned by the clubwomen, according to Mrs. Joe Bell, spokesman for the organization.

She said that several nurses would be able to work simultaneously at the desk, while the old chart desk could accommodate but one.

The Club still has approximately $300 with which to purchase hospital equipment, but the women have tabled further action until the nurses' pay controversy is ironed out.

The clubwomen are solidly behind the issue of pay increase to the staff, and a delegation of the members will appear at next council meeting to voice opinions.

Members of the group also approved a motion of devoting weekly meeting nights toward sewing hospital garments needing repairs.

Local Troops To Get Honor

Pickaway District, Boy Scout Troops 107, 121 and 159 are to receive special recognition in Columbus Monday night for enrollment growth during 1948.

The troops are to receive special commendation from Fred J. Milligan, president of the Central Ohio Council. Main speaker for the evening will be A. E. Roberts of Cincinnati, international youth leader.

Richard Morris, member-at-large for the local district committee, and Raymond Turner, district field executive, will accept the local awards.

Troop 107 is sponsored by First Methodist church, Carl Jenkins, Scoutmaster; Troop 121 sponsored by the Presbyterian church, Robert Dean, Scoutmaster; and Troop 159 sponsored by the four Ashville churches, Robert Welsh, Scoutmaster.

Francisco to escort him the final 600 miles of his over-water trek. The record-breaking aviator reported that "everything is fine" on the flight.

The flier was seeking to maintain an average speed of 140 miles an hour in his Beechcraft Bonanza.

Odom said the flight is much easier than the similar one he attempted two months ago. He declared:

"I have nothing to do but sit and listen to the quiver of my little engine."

HE REPORTED visibility was excellent and that he has ridden through a small storm—the only adverse weather condition predicted in the latest forecast before take off last night.

Odom said his plane was running smoothly, although the fuel pressure was a bit low. He declared he was having an easier time maintaining his course than last time because of a new compass.

The B-17 reported that Odom's speed was about five miles per hour greater than on his attempt to make the record-breaking 5,000 mile flight two months ago.

Odom met six boats during the first four hours of his flight, and almost all of the time was in sight of the plane accompanying him. His radio was reported good.

The famed speed flier was confident and just before his takeoff said: "This is it. We'll make it."

The 185-horsepower Beechcraft was carrying a capacity load of 288 gallons of fuel.

The plane weighed 3,799 pounds fully loaded but nevertheless was able to reach its flight ceiling only 78 seconds after its wheels left the ground.

Route 2 Man Is Arrested On Looting Count

Richard Draise of Circleville Route 2 was arrested in his home Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Fred Heinzelman of Chillicothe, accused of looting the house of a neighbor, Steven Blankenship of near Yellowtown.

Blankenship told Deputy Heinzelman he had moved his family into Yellowtown three weeks ago, and when he returned to his farm Friday he found the place ransacked. Dishes, blankets and all of their clothing were missing.

Deputy Heinzelman began a search of the vicinity and located the stolen goods at the Draise home, he said. Draise was arrested on a charge of breaking and entering. He will appear before Municipal Judge E. A. Moats sometime this week.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he had not been informed of the case. He said the Draise home is over the line in Ross County.

Mader Says Red Cross Drive To Make Its Goal

It looks as if the $9,300 Pickaway County Red Cross fund goal soon will be realized.

So says Lincoln S. Mader, chairman of the local campaign. He said Monday the drive already has netted more than $3,000, and only two of the outlying townships have reported their receipts.

"For the first time since we launched the campaign I am optimistic," Mader stated. "Now it looks as if we may go over the top."

He said he was almost sure Circleville would meet its quota set for the drive, and if the county returns proved equally generous, the drive would shoot over the mark.

The chairman stated that he would not definitely know whether the goal had been met for nearly a month, however, until the books were officially audited and closed.

"ALTHOUGH the drive officially lasted only five days," he added, "personal contributions will be accepted anytime within the 30-day period."

"One of our donations was from Circleville's own Ted Lewis, who, although he has not lived in the community for many years, dug down into his pocket to chip in $50."

Individual contributors, who might have been missed in the campaign, may donate by addressing their contributions to: Pickaway Chapter, American Red Cross, South Court street, Circleville.

Monday night, after the session, the senate liquor control committee will again consider Gov. Frank Lausche's proposal to increase all liquor permits by 50 percent.

It was estimated at last week's committee hearing that the increase would mean as much as $8 million increase in the local government fund, since per mit fees go back to the site of origin.

Tuesday morning the house committee on organization of state government will begin hearings on an issue that rocked the legislature six years ago—daylight versus standard time. Two measures are up for consideration.

One would place the state on daylight savings time for the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.

The other proposes to amend the constitution to take from charter cities the right to set their own time—in other words, to require that the entire state, city and rural districts alike, remain on the same time basis during the Summer months.

You get a new car... we get a bill for $530.00

to keep it in gasoline and oil

For every new car added to the automobile population, the oil industry is providing $530 worth of new wells, new pipelines, new refineries.

And since the prewar high, 3,700,000 new cars have been added to the national total... more than 175,000 additional automobiles right here in Ohio.

See why it took so much money to lick last year's shortage of oil?

See why almost every oil company is still using more money than it is earning to keep up with this huge and increasing demand?

See why Sohio, even with record business and earnings, has borrowed millions of dollars to help supply those additional cars... and oil burners... and tractors... and diesel locomotives... and trucks... and airplanes... here in Ohio?

We believe you'll agree... it will be good for everybody if oil industry earnings continue to be enough to bring you all the oil you need.

ation later. Tonight, however, is the deadline for reconsideration—the second legislative day.

Monday night, after the session, the senate liquor control committee will again consider Gov. Frank Lausche's proposal to increase all liquor permits by 50 percent.

It was estimated at last week's committee hearing that the increase would mean as much as $8 million increase in the local government fund, since per mit fees go back to the site of origin.

Tuesday morning the house committee on organization of state government will begin hearings on an issue that rocked the legislature six years ago—daylight versus standard time. Two measures are up for consideration.

One would place the state on daylight savings time for the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September.

The other proposes to amend the constitution to take from charter cities the right to set their own time—in other words, to require that the entire state, city and rural districts alike, remain on the same time basis during the Summer months.

You get a new car...
we get a bill for $530⁰⁰

to keep it in gasoline and oil

For every new car added to the automobile population, the oil industry is providing $530 worth of new wells, new pipelines, new refineries.

And since the prewar high, 3,700,000 new cars have been added to the national total... more than 175,000 additional automobiles right here in Ohio.

See why it took so much money to lick last year's shortage of oil?

See why almost every oil company is still using more money than it is earning to keep up with this huge and increasing demand?

See why Sohio, even with record business and earnings, has borrowed millions of dollars to help supply those additional cars... and oil burners... and tractors... and diesel locomotives... and trucks... and airplanes... here in Ohio?

We believe you'll agree... it will be good for everybody if oil industry earnings continue to be enough to bring you all the oil you need.

Letters To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. No demerit will be used if requested.

Editor, the Herald:

These are the following reasons we have taken our stand on the Berger hospital issue.

The city of Circleville ended the year of 1947 with about $26,000; the year of 1948 with about $24,000 with about $5,000 being spent for the fire department alarm system and two-way radio for the police department which left us a balance of about $19,000, which means that if we do nothing else, fix no street or install new sewers from the general fund, we should have about $14,000 balance this year.

City Council, regardless of some newspaper criticism as to their ability, is in one of the very few cities that has operated on the black side of the ledger. We realize that all our city employees including hospital, police, fireman, sewage, service and water departments are all underpaid, according to other cities, from twenty to fifty dollars per month.

However, we would like to point out that all city employees now get paid overtime. For instance, a nurse who works a double shift (16 hours) receives eight hours extra pay or a total of about $14 for the day.

We feel very proud of all our employees because this is the first labor trouble we have ever had and in our opinion it was all agitated by someone other than the hospital employees themselves.

When we think of raising our expenditures we must think seriously of our outlying districts who have paid taxes as well and who have waited for years for sanitary sewers. We speak of health conditions in our city but we cannot put in sanitary sewers by just wishful thinking. It actually takes money to construct sanitary sewers. These people are still using outside toilets and taking baths in zero weather behind the stove in an old wash tub. Do you people who already have all the modern conveniences feel that these people should have the same consideration that we have had?

Some people say: give them a raise right now; without even thinking where the money is to come from or how you might raise the money. We realize that Circleville is blessed with a lot of good doctors.

The paper stated that Ray B. Anderson, said the doctors took their best patients to Columbus. What he actually said was that a lot of them did and that still goes. We have some doctors that if it was not for their loyalty to the hospital it could never exist. We realize that Berger hospital is a "must" institution to the city. We are very happy that all of this came up for this reason that we find those who complain all the time are very much in the minority.

Councilman Anderson raised the issue of putting our hospital under a citizen committee shortly after he came into office only to be set aside when Mayor Gordon appointed Thurman I. Miller as safety director. During his administration we found Miller walking down the streets from store to store practically begging for scarce items to keep food at the Berger hospital. When a man is actually trying to do something and you find that he is being pressed for special privileges, then it seems evident that we should take Berger hospital out of the hands of politics. We have talked with the mayor, Thurman I. Miller, and he thinks that it should have never been placed in the hands of a safety director. Regardless of how good a job he does or how hard he tries, he still thinks and has wholeheartedly endorsed the idea of a citizen committee.

We know that some of our critics like what is being done but they don't like who is doing it. We think regardless of who is in council or who is serving as administrative capacity, Circleville has moved forward a lot in the past six years. We would like to call your attention to just a few improvements: Our boulevard lights, our Court Street improvement, nine large sewer improvements plus our new fire alarm system our two-way radio. This all has cost thousands of dollars and it has all been paid for even leaving us clear out of the picture. We think that city council and the city administration has done a commendable job.

Our thought behind the whole thing is that we remember when Circleville was living in the dark. Its employees had to wait for their salaries and we certainly don't want to go back to those days and we will assure you that Berger hospital will be kept open and the same good service will be rendered to the public as of in the past.

Ray B. Anderson
Ralph E. Wallace

Editor, The Herald:

In the opinion of the undersigned physicians of Circleville, the attack on the superintendent of Berger hospital, reported in The Circleville Herald and quoting Councilman Ray Anderson, was entirely unwarranted and was given without a knowledge of the facts.

Under the superintendency of Mrs. Carolyn Dennis, Berger hospital is operating more efficiently and with less friction than ever in its history.

Mrs. Dennis accepted the position only after urging and on the condition that another superintendent would be employed. It has not been possible to find another capable qualified person who will serve for the salary offered and Mrs. Dennis has continued not only as superintendent, but, on one occasion at least, as a duty nurse through the night.

We would like to hereby stress why we feel the employees of Berger hospital should be granted the pay increase requested.

First and foremost, the city of Circleville needs the services of Berger hospital. It is a great confidence to the people to know that they can receive medical and nursing assistance locally at any time of the day or night. This importance—among many others—obviously is not recognized by many so-called citizens of this city, particularly a few members of city council.

We feel certain that any council member opposed to the increase need but spend a few hours at Berger hospital to see and understand the situation it is in.

Would you members of council work 16 hours or more for the mere wages which the nursing staff is now getting? Naturally, "no" would be the answer.

For these reasons, we feel that you as council men should waken up and delve deeper into this matter before casting a vote just from the financial standpoint when really you are dealing with the health and welfare of human beings.

CLEVELAND, March 7—Gus Hall, chairman of the Ohio Communist Party, believes that the trial of 12 top Communists, including himself, is "an attempt to take away the bill of rights from 160 million people."

The Ohio party leader compared the Communists' trial with the Dred Scott trial of 93 years ago.

Fatal Shooting Is Investigated

COLUMBUS, March 7—Columbus police today quizzed Mrs. Iola Arnold, 38, in the fatal shooting of her husband, William, 44, in their apartment Saturday evening.

They said she admitted shooting her husband in the chest with a .38-calibre revolver during an argument.

Driver Is Held In Man's Death

XENIA, March 7—John Hunter, 51-year-old Yellow Springs painter, was being held without bail today in Greene County jail in the traffic death of Glenn L. Deaton, 66, hardware store owner.

Police Chief Russell Bradley said tests showed that Hunter was intoxicated when he side-swiped two cars then hit Deaton. Deaton died four hours after the accident early yesterday.

Bradley said he plans to confer with County Prosecutor George R. Smith today on the charge against Hunter.

CINCINNATI, March 7—Liberalism has become the popular credo in government today but its political interpretation seems to mean governmental dominance.

But, Dr. Mason went on, "what about the role of government in the more rarified sphere of mind, spirit and belief?"

Skeleton Found Near Caldwell

CALDWELL, March 7—Noble County Sheriff Clayton McKee began an investigation today into the death of a man whose skeleton was found late yesterday at nearby Buzzard's Glory.

McKee said the man had apparently committed suicide. He said a bullet from a corroded German gun found in the skeleton's hand had entered the mouth and passed upward through the skull.

The bones were found by hunters holding field trials with their dogs. They were lying on top of the ground, partially covered by grass.

McKee said he thought the bones had been there about two years because of the amount of corrosion on the gun.

THE most disappointed communities in the United States last year were those which did not get to see the Freedom Train, or found its stay in their town too short for the number of citizens who wanted to see the train. Now the House Post Office Committee has voted a $3,000,000 appropriation to keep the train running for three more years. This measure must be approved by the House itself, then by the Senate and the President; but at least it is on the way.

No sight could be more conducive to patriotism than the chance to view such priceless documents as the original of the Constitution or of the Declaration of Independence. The one fear is that these priceless documents may suffer from constant traveling.

FAME OR MONEY?

A QUARTER of a century ago, the magazine Retail Bookseller recalls, the great literary figure was Booth Tarkington. He had written novels which sold as many as 3,000,000 copies, and was the only author to receive the Pulitzer prize for fiction twice. He has now been dead for less than three years. It is already apparent that he was a competent portrayer of the American scene with observation and humor, but that he will not go down in history in the small and brilliant company of the geniuses.

Writers like Tarkington won fame and fortune in their lifetime, even if the glory has faded somewhat since. Being serious practitioners of their art, they would probably have been ready to trade all their profits for literary immortality.

THREE SENATORS

THE MOST unpopular suggestion in a long time comes from Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island. He wants each state to have three senators instead of two, saying that the task of answering constituents and carrying out their wishes is too much for the present set-up.

Senators will not like his idea, for it would mean dividing patronage by three instead of two. And most private citizens are firmly convinced that there are at least enough senators as it is.

On the other hand, if there should ever be any reduction in numbers, it might be much more desirable to apply it to the House than to the Senate.

There is still an uncomfortable amount of "language barrier" in the world, but little by little it is being overcome by people energetic enough to learn other people's tongues.

As far as atomic warfare is concerned, it may go as far as it likes in an outward direction—with the understanding that it never comes back.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Disinflation, the new federal prose term for a depression, is designed to describe an upset in government thinking and planning.

Just as Henry Wallace expected a bust immediately after the end of war, and the government devised its policies to meet that bust only to discover a boom which moved into an inflation, so Mr. Truman's current economic advisers expected a rising inflation for this year and so prepared his budget message, only to discover a depression.

The very men who have made great political capital by ridiculing such a phrase as "prosperity is just around the corner" are now saying that if everybody will be optimistic, everything will be all right. It is as though economists have turned themselves into psychoanalysts, which maybe they have done, and are substituting for an analysis of facts the atmosphere of "The Roses That Bloom in the Spring, Tra-La!"

The facts indicate that a normal and not unhappy event is occurring which might have come earlier but for government intervention, namely, that the backlog of consumer goods orders has been liquidated and the backlog of capital goods orders is in its final stages. This means that the market has changed from a sellers' to a buyers' market and that resistance to spending is setting in.

This has been complicated by the President's tax proposals and forces the consumer to postpone buying. One can only pay taxes with cash in hand and if the government wants more, the consumer has less money for purchases.

This combination of an increase in available inventory and fear of increased taxes, plus the fact that we live in a country in which perhaps as high as 40 percent of all purchases are postponable, creates a drop in prices and increases the value of the dollar. This drop would be deeper except for government farm subsidies and government prospective spending for military expenditures and current spending by dumping surplus goods in Europe and Asia under the Marshall Plan.

The President faces the same dilemma this year as he did in 1945 when, in pursuance of Wallace's statistics, he and the country were violently misled. I listened to Leon Keyserling on the radio recently try to defend the Council of Economic Advisers' errors and he did very badly. I shall refer to his absurdities when I can get the radio script.

In this connection, it is interesting to point to an article in The London Economist which deals with the creeping socialism of this administration:

"The price system acts not freely, but under controls imposed by business, by labor, by governments, both state and federal. Rent controls are imposed by nation and state. The price of a fur coat in New York includes 20 percent federal tax and two percent city tax, while if the purchaser goes home with it to Connecticut she may also be liable to a three percent state tax. Prices on tooth brushes, shaving creams and other trademarked articles may be set by the manufacturer and must be kept by the retailer under penalty of state law. The recent rise in the cost of travel between New York and Boston had to be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The use of prefabricated houses to cut building costs has been blocked by the antiquated building codes of many towns."

Apparently the Socialistic British have discovered a fellow-feeling in Washington.

SYNOPSIS

Marriage for the Parishes had begun frantically. After a long time, Beatrice Parishes and her successful husband, Porter, find themselves at an impasse. Porter has become morose and disgruntled as to the old Mr. Ramey, the rich industrialist who employs him. Beatrice fears that their marriage is headed for the rocks. At breakfast Porter creates an ugly scene with Beatrice, his little school-girl daughter. Angerily he slams out of the house.

CHAPTER THREE

BEATRICE went out the kitchen door and walked down the flagstone path. The autumn flowers were lovely, untouched by frost, and the grass, new from the September planting, was greener than it had been in the summer. The little pond flanked by moss-covered stones shimmered under the mid-morning sun. Porter had built that, and also the stone fireplace too. He had laid the flagstone terrace. He didn't do anything now.

The garage wall was not damaged.

She did not start her car, a maroon-colored convertible, at once. She sat at the wheel looking foolish—a slight figure in a gray wool suit shot through with a fine yellow check. Just sitting there trying to remember what it was she had to do today, and where precisely she was going. Oh, to see life fresh in the old simple eternal lines, to return to the days of full consciousness where she had had mastery over the cleanly cut pattern of her life.

Her life. While now it seemed to have been so brief, so swift paced, there had been a time when she had thought she would never grow up. Those slow, crawling years of childhood with Cecily, her mother. Years when she, shy and eager, a child possessing affection no one could use, a child of troubled perceptions, had wanted desperately to give shape to her shapeless little life. She had never known her father, John Holden, who had died when Beatrice was a baby. In the soft tones of the southern town from which both Cecily and John had sprung, and to which Cecily could not return after two exciting years in New York, Cecily had later explained, "I was alone and with a tiny baby. And I was so young! And of course I had never done anything!"

The New York apartment high above the street, with a view, the large living room beautifully furnished had been a perfect setting for Cecily. Beatrice had often visualized the various men who must have walked across the thick beige carpet to Cecily's tiny figure and golden hair and huge, helpless, beautiful eyes. They had all wanted to help her, the fragile, appealing young widow with her baby. Not a few had been men of good will, for they had made sound investments for her with the money from John's insurance, and thus had enabled her to remain in New York increasing her circle of friends, and becoming one of those idle, pretty, unattached women who go their restless brilliant little way incapable of more than a brief illusion of love.

Though Cecily had been a sweet gay person, quick to laugh, sentimental, articulate, charmingly thoughtless, frivolously extravagant, and notoriously unpractical, Beatrice had never felt that she was really her mother, for she had never been on the inside of Cecily's life. She had lived only on the fringe of it, a lonely little girl abandoned to a room into which seeped through the keyhole and under the door the voices of her mother's friends and the music that invariably surrounded them because they had no music in themselves. To Beatrice her mother's kiss was as vague as it was fragrant, her conversation as empty as her eyes, as indeed it seemed to the child, often were. Glimpses into the homes of her school friends, homes in which there was order and routine and orthodox family living, only increased Beatrice's silent despair. She would never forget her unspeakable agony the Christmas Cecily bought her a coat and hat made of white rabbits' fur, and insisted she wear it to the carol singing assembly where all the other little girls had worn plain tailored tweeds.

Then Cecily went to Bermuda. On the morning that her ship was due in New York, Henry, one of Cecily's friends, stopped at the apartment and asked if Beatrice would like to go to meet her mother. An hour later standing on the pier, Beatrice felt her excitement die several poignant little deaths. The last passenger had disembarked and Cecily was not there. The letter Beatrice found when she reached the apartment told her that Cecily had married a man named Lester Cornwall in Bermuda.

Yet Cecily's marriage, when she and Lester returned, altered Beatrice's life not at all. Lester was a tall young man with dull eyes, a positive antipathy for work, and an overwhelming fondness for moving from one golf course to another. He had some obscure association with a real estate company of which his uncle was president. Later it was obvious to Beatrice that Lester's uncle paid him for not coming to work. His kindness to Beatrice had an almost childlike quality, and it amused him that she was quicker at games than he was. That he and Cecily were so much alike was the nemesis of their marriage. It ended after three years when Cecily met Edward Sutherland. Beatrice was as sorry to see Lester go as she was sorry for him. Only one remark of his remained with her. Of Beatrice he had said to Cecily, "The kid lives deep."

Eddie was different altogether. To Beatrice he was very old. He was small and silvery-haired and walked with short, staccato steps. Of his background Beatrice knew only that he had made his money in Detroit, and that his married daughter wouldn't speak to him anymore. His efforts to be youthfully jovial fell far short of their intended goal. Indeed, he never seemed to get over being both pleased and embarrassed that only one should call him "Eddie." He did not work. Thus he and Cecily traveled a good deal, their itinerary explained to Beatrice only by the postcards they sent her. Though Beatrice never really knew Eddie, and only later wondered if his imprudent marriage to Cecily had been worth the strain on his physical energy and the drain on his material resources, she was eternally grateful to him for suggesting to Cecily that Beatrice should go away to school. If he had not, she would never have known Clara and Libby, and she would never have married Porter. Though Eddie did not live long after the divorce and his subsequent return to Detroit, he nevertheless generously remembered Cecily in his will. And Cecily continued to live as she was living this very moment, Beatrice thought, in a beautifully decorated apartment high above the street with a view, and with men still going to her bearing gifts. Tangible gifts, for it was only the things she could possess and hold in her small hands that she desired and understood. The imperishable, the gifts of the human spirit—of love and tenderness and charity and humility—were not of her knowing.

Her first appointment was with Hilde, her hairdresser.

As she started the car, Beatrice thought how grimly appropriate it was that she was seeing Hilde this morning. For, from the incoherent whisperings of the other girls in the shop, she had gathered that Hilde was having "trouble with her husband." Beatrice's friends didn't understand why she drove all the way across town to an unpretentious little shop where the operators had no reputation, and where she didn't know anyone to talk to. They went to Andre or Roberto or Karl. Beatrice had told them that she had found Hilde in the shop when she and Porter had been living in a tiny apartment on the wrong side of town, and that Hilde was not only a good operator but she liked her. That liking the girl who did your hair and nails was incomprehensible to them only strengthened Beatrice's growing suspicions that her friendships, with the exception of Libby, had extension rather than depth. Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

If DiMaggio's heel continues to give him trouble, the Treasury may have to send a man to run bases for him.

Joe is worth $50,000 a year on the hoof to the Treasury but the hoof must be in good condition.

The tax take from DiMag's heels, Crosby's tonsils and Louis' fists have saved many a European from a fate worse than working.

And I understand when Secretary Snyder heard that the Dodgers are trying eight men at third base he rubbed his hands together and said, "what a year this will be for the Marshall Plan if they all play!"

What a year it will be for the Dodgers if they don't!

Anyway the Treasury has asked for 7,000 more employees to check tax returns. This is working toward the eventual goal of one checker per one return.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Circleville police Saturday night jailed four men on charges of intoxication.

Miss Marilyn Elizabeth Lutz became the bride of Robert L. Brehrer Jr. Saturday afternoon at services in St. George's Episcopal church of Schenectady.

Scioto river on a rampage signals the definite end of a Pickaway drought that had most farmers doing overtime worrying.

Charles Carter of Deercreek Township is seriously ill, suffering an attack of influenza.

Backers of Harold E. Stassen, the so-called liberal branch, also seek the leadership.

● FARM BILL SURPRISES—Administration farm experts are preparing a new long-range farm bill to be presented to Congress next month—and it will contain several surprises.

Huge government loans on last year's crop production have convinced them that support prices at 90 per cent of parity are not practical unless the government has some power to control acreages. They want a program that would scale government loans from 60 per cent of parity on up, depending upon the overall size of the particular crop.

To sugar-coat the bill, the administration is considering raising the highest loan rate to full parity in years when the crop is appreciably smaller than average and where farms have consented to planting limitations.

They look for support from some farm legislators by extending the government loan program beyond the present "basic" crops. The idea is to hold down objections of farmers now guaranteed 90 per cent of parity, by offering them support prices on a much wider range of crops.

However, the Agriculture department experts are not at all sure that their program will be accepted by the House and Senate agriculture committees.

● GOP NEEDLE—Senate Republicans are finding their role as the minority party has its compensations—chiefly through the use of the needle. Republicans have been "needling" their opponents particularly on two fronts.

First, they have been demanding Democratic action on anti-filibuster legislation—a touchy issue at any time, and particularly so with President Truman's civil rights legislation coming up.

The second front on which the GOP is needling the opposition is in the Senate labor committee. Republicans have constantly chided the Democrats on attempts to cut the hearings short.

The Republicans, largely responsible for the Taft-Hartley Act, contend that new labor legislation cannot possibly be explored without thorough exploration of the subject.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

"A ham sandwich, and make it snappy," he told the waiter in his best U. N. vernacular.

The waiter smiled and said, "I guess you didn't notice the sign on this restaurant. We don't serve any meat. This place is 100 percent vegetarian."

The Russian was amazed. "This room is packed," he pointed out. "Do you mean to tell me all these people are actually vegetarians?"

The waiter leaned over and whispered, "Keep this under your hat, but only ten per cent are really vegetarians. The rest are merely sympathizers."

A small business man sought to borrow $100,000 from the bank. "That's a lot of money," said the bank president. "Can you give me a statement?"

"Yes," said the businessman. "I'm optimistic."

WASHINGTON—The heads that wear the titular crowns in the Republican party lie in extreme uneasiness, with only a temporary armistice blocking a new struggle for power.

Veteran political observers consider GOP National Chairman Hugh Scott's five-vote escape from defeat last month in Omaha as only a breathing spell. New troubles lie ahead for Scott, Thomas E. Dewey's man.

Dewey's statement in his Lincoln Day speech in Washington that the party is "split wide open" has brought a challenge from Senate GOP leader Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska.

Wherry has pointed the way for new attacks by replying that those who say the party is split "do the party a disservice—if there is any split it is in the leadership."

The next attack on Dewey, whose declaration that he will not again seek the presidency is viewed with skepticism by his critics, is expected to come from a coalition of "right" and "left" blocs within the GOP.

If anti-Dewey elements, opposed in philosophy though they may be, can unhorse Scott, they will settle down to a struggle among themselves over selection of a new leader.

Senate Republican Policy Chairman Robert A. Taft of Ohio wants the undisputed party leadership, but he must wait until 1950, when the big test will be whether he can win re-election in the face of almost united labor opposition in the Buckeye state.

As she started the car, Beatrice thought how grimly appropriate it was that she was seeing Hilde this morning. For, from the incoherent whisperings of the other girls in the shop, she had gathered that Hilde was having "trouble with her husband." Beatrice's friends didn't understand why she drove all the way across town to an unpretentious little shop where the operators had no reputation, and where she didn't know anyone to talk to. They went to Andre or Roberto or Karl. Beatrice had told them that she had found Hilde in the shop when she and Porter had been living in a tiny apartment on the wrong side of town, and that Hilde was not only a good operator but she liked her. That liking the girl who did your hair and nails was incomprehensible to them only strengthened Beatrice's growing suspicions that her friendships, with the exception of Libby, had extension rather than depth.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

If DiMaggio's heel continues to give him trouble, the Treasury may have to send a man to run bases for him.

Joe is worth $50,000 a year on the hoof to the Treasury but the hoof must be in good condition.

The tax take from DiMag's heels, Crosby's tonsils and Louis' fists have saved many a European from a fate worse than working.

And I understand when Secretary Snyder heard that the Dodgers are trying eight men at third base he rubbed his hands together and said, "what a year this will be for the Marshall Plan if they all play!"

What a year it will be for the Dodgers if they don't! Anyway the Treasury has asked for 7,000 more employees to check tax returns. This is working toward the eventual goal of one checker per one return.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Circleville police Saturday night jailed four men on charges of intoxication.

Miss Marilyn Elizabeth Lutz became the bride of Robert L. Brehmer Jr. Saturday afternoon at services in St. George's Episcopal church of Schenectady.

Scioto river on a rampage signals the definite end of a Pickaway drought that had most farmers doing overtime worrying.

TEN YEARS AGO

Fender on an auto driven by L. E. Evans, East Main street, was damaged when struck by an ambulance from Wellston on North Court street.

County commissioners bought a carload of West Virginia coal from Thomas Rader and son, on a bid of $3.75 a ton.

Charles Carter of Deercreek Township is seriously ill, suffering an attack of influenza.

Backers of Harold E. Stassen, the so-called liberal branch, also seek the leadership.

● FARM BILL SURPRISES—Administration farm experts are preparing a new long-range farm bill to be presented to Congress next month—and it will contain several surprises.

Huge government loans on last year's crop production have convinced them that support prices at 90 percent of parity are not practical unless the government has some power to control acreages.

They want a program that would scale government loans from 60 percent of parity on up, depending upon the overall size of the particular crop.

To sugar-coat the bill, the administration is considering raising the highest loan rate to full parity in years when the crop is appreciably smaller than average and where farms have consented to planting limitations.

They look for support from some farm legislators by extending the government loan program beyond the present "basic" crops. The idea is to hold down objections of farmers now guaranteed 90 percent of parity, by offering them support prices on a much wider range of crops.

However, the Agriculture department experts are not at all sure that their program will be accepted by the House and Senate agriculture committees.

● GOP NEEDLE—Senate Republicans are finding their role as the minority party has its compensations—chiefly through the use of the needle. Republicans have been "needling" their opponents particularly on two fronts.

First, they have been demanding Democratic action on anti-filibuster legislation—a touchy issue at any time, and particularly so with President Truman's civil rights legislation coming up.

The second front on which the GOP is needling the opposition is in the Senate labor committee. Republicans have constantly chided the Democrats on attempts to cut the hearings short.

The Republicans, largely responsible for the Taft-Hartley Act, contend that new labor legislation cannot possibly be explored without thorough exploration of the subject.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Carson Dresbach and children of Kingston were Saturday guests of Mrs. Harry Riegel of Circleville.

Rowe Gussman, the cleaner, met with an accident while operating a washing machine at his cleaning establishment, when the end of his forefinger was caught in the cogs and cut off.

Mrs. H. H. Groce and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, spent the day in Columbus.

At the conclusion of a particularly hectic session of the United Nations, one of the heads of the Russian delegation was seized with pangs of hunger and barged into the first restaurant he passed.

"A ham sandwich, and make it snappy," he told the waiter in his best U. N. vernacular.

The waiter smiled and said, "I guess you didn't notice the sign on this restaurant. We don't serve any meat. This place is 100 percent vegetarian."

The Russian was amazed. "This room is packed," he pointed out. "Do you mean to tell me all these people are actually vegetarians?"

The waiter leaned over and whispered, "Keep this under your hat, but only ten per cent are really vegetarians. The rest are merely sympathizers."

A small business man sought to borrow $100,000 from the bank. "That's a lot of money," said the bank president. "Can you give me a statement?"

"Yes," said the businessman. "I'm optimistic."

Pickaway Township basketball team, last remaining Pickaway County entry in the Class B contests in Westerville, was dismissed from competition Saturday when Worthington downed them 40-34.

Thus, the last entry from Pickaway County—Class A or Class B—was knocked off the glory road that leads to the state basketball championship.

ONLY REMAINING cage project for this season is the selection of the individual who will receive the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy for 1949.

The Pickaway quintet eagerly opened their final tilt Saturday and held a substantial lead for the first half of the fracas, but, following a worthless third quarter, fell behind for the loss.

Sporting a 9-5 first round advantage, the local Pirates advanced to a 24-19 margin at half-time.

Worthington tightened up in the third stanza, however, harrying the local marksmen, who failed to drop in a single point in the period while Worthington surged ahead to a 29-24 lead going into the homestretch.

Pickaway basketballers again woke up in the final frame to approach their opponent's lead by 33-39 at the automatic timeout, and to knot the score at 34-34 with less than two minutes of play remaining.

BIG BOB BUELL, mainstay of the Worthington aggregation and the spearhead which cleaved Walnut from tournament competition earlier, dropped in a pivot shot with only 1:27 minutes of the game remaining, and followed up with two bunny shots to clinch the victory.

Buell's drive netted him 23 points to lead scoring in the encounter. Ned Wolfe posted the high mark for Pickaway with a total of 15 points.

Chandler Facing $5 Million Court Suit, Report

ST. LOUIS, March 7—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has reported that a New York attorney is preparing a $5 million suit against A. B. (Happy) Chandler, baseball commissioner, in behalf of 10 former major league ball players.

The newspaper said yesterday that the attorney is John L. Flynn who admitted the suit is based on the chief complaint that the players have been barred by Chandler's action from earning a livelihood.

Players named by the Post-Dispatch were given five-year suspensions for alleged violation of major league contracts in "jumping" to the Mexican Baseball League.

Those listed by the newspaper as joining in the threatened suit are Max Lanier, Lou Klein and Fred Martin, all former St. Louis Cardinals; Myron "Red" Hayworth, former St. Louis Browns and Toledo player and the following former New York Giants:

Sol Maglie, Roy Zimmerman, Harry Feldman, George Hausmann and Ace Adams.

The other player in the proposed court action is Luis Olmo, former Brooklyn outfielder.

Cooper Grabs St. Pete Cash

ST. PETERSBURG, March 7—Pete Cooper, of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., walked away with $2,000 and the St. Petersburg Open golf tournament title today and all because of a 12-foot putt.

The putt, which came on the 18th hole, broke a tie with Cary Middlecoff, of Memphis, Tenn., and gave Cooper a par 71 for a 275 total.

Middlecoff, who shot from 14 feet, missed by six inches and tapped in his second putt yesterday for a birdie four. That gave him a 68 but a 276 score. His second place standing brought $1,400.

Cerdan Planning Bout With Zale

NEW YORK, March 7—Representatives of Middleweight Champion Marcel Cerdan will confer with the Tournament of Champions today regarding a return bout between the Frenchman and Tony Zale, former titleholder from Gary, Ind.

Sam Pian, co-manager of Zale, said Tony will start training immediately but will need several tuneup fights and will not be ready for Cerdan before mid-June.

NCAA Playoffs Due To See Great Tilt

CHICAGO, March 7—A game between Kentucky and Illinois—as natural as six and five and probably just as close—became a promised reality for basketball fans today with the invitation of the Illini, newly-crowned Big Nine champs, to the NCAA playoffs.

Kentucky, which hammered Tulane to win its sixth Southeastern Conference title Saturday night, already had accepted a bid to represent District two of the NCAA at the eastern playoffs in New York two weeks hence.

Yesterday, Illinois, which backed into the Big Nine title the night before on wings of Wisconsin's 45-43 upset of Minnesota, was chosen to represent District Four at the eastern playoffs.

They say there never was a scoring machine like Kentucky—but Illinois needs only 26 points in its final conference game against Michigan tonight to become the greatest scoring team in Big Nine history.

OTHER TEAMS in the eastern playoffs are Yale, definitely invited from District One; and one of three teams, Villanova, Duquesne or CCNY from District Three, with the former apparently on the inside.

The western playoffs at Kansas City aren't positively aligned as yet. Oklahoma A and M, Missouri Valley champion, seems likely for the District Five bid, but Oklahoma and Nebraska, currently tied atop the Big Seven aren't altogether out of it.

Baylor, Rice and Arkansas, who tied for the Southwest Conference title, and Arizona, champion of the border loop, are in line for the District Six bid, with a good chance of a playoff to decide the ultimate choice.

For District Seven, Wyoming, which can win the Big Six, appears to be "in." Utah has a change, but the Utes have already

Ashville Pros Swamp Circleville Cagers, 76-31

Ashville semi-pro basketball team knocked Circleville Merchants from the winner bracket of the Chillicothe invitational tournament Sunday by a lopsided 76-31 final tally.

The Ashvillers gave a show of power in the first round by posting a 28-5 lead, following through with a 43-12 halftime margin, 60-17 three-quarter mark tally and slowed down in the home stretch for the 76-31 win.

Russ Gregg and Charles Pettibone tied for scoring honors on the Ashville quintet with 16 points apiece, while Jack Hennis pace the Circleville squad with a total of seven.

The tourney is double elimination, and both teams will play other squads Sunday.

Ohio-Indiana League Shrinks

COLUMBUS, March 7—With the Richmond, Ind., club definitely out of the running, the Ohio-Indiana Class D baseball league is prepared today to start the '49 season with six clubs.

A league directive ordering the Indiana club to make ready or drop out, failed to stir up the training schedule enough for the Hoosiers to get in under the line.

Meanwhile, Zanesville, following orders, got big league backing in the person of the Cleveland Indians. But its no go for the city Chamber of Commerce team unless a mate to fill up the roster to eight even clubs can be found by April 1.

ready accepted an invitation to the National Invitational Tournament.

In District Eight, it'll be the winner of the UCLA-Oregon State game this week for the Pacific Coast championship.

Kentucky, of course, remains the grand slam possibility, the Wildcats also having accepted a bite from the national invitational in Madison Square Garden the week before the NCAA playoffs. St. Louis university, only team to beat Kentucky this season, has accepted an invitational bid, as have Western Kentucky, Bradley and aforementioned Utah, which leaves three spots yet to be filled.

CLEVELAND, March 7—Steel Magazine reported today that metalworking operations are continuing their downward skid.

week Hudson Motor Car Co. cut production to levels more in harmony with current sales. This is
